ABLE Copyright Form

Who holds copyright?

Copyright of your individual article in Advances in Biology Laboratory Education is owned by you (and your co-authors) or by your institution;

ABLE holds copyright of the compilation (i.e., of all chapters compiled together in a volume). If the exercise that you presented at the ABLE workshop/conference was created while you were employed by your institution, then typically, your institution owns copyright of the laboratory exercise. Copyright law in the U.S. states that “copyright in the work of authorship immediately becomes the property of the author[s] who created it... In the case of works for hire, the employer and not the employee is prescriptively the author... A work for hire [is] ... a work prepared by an employee within the scope of his/her employment.”

Author's declaration

When you submit your manuscript, please complete the space below which acknowledges that (1) you or your institution owns copyright, and (2) you agree (by giving your signature below) to permit the use of your exercise/chapter by another individual subject to the conditions outlined in the following statement (which will appear on the copyright page of the Publication volume):

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise, without the prior written permission of the copyright owner. Use solely at one's own institution with no intent for profit is excluded from the preceding copyright restriction, unless otherwise noted on the copyright notice of the individual chapter in this volume. Proper credit to this publication must be included in your laboratory outline for each use; a sample citation is given above. Upon obtaining permission or with the "sole use at one's own institution" exclusion, ABLE strongly encourages individuals to use the exercises in this publication volume in their teaching program.

The above statement indicates that a request by an individual to use an exercise/chapter for a “for profit” use must be made directly to the author(s). ABLE's only condition in this regard is that proper credit to the ABLE Publication must be included in the user's collected work for each use.

1. Name of author(s) (Please print and list all authors including yourself):

2. The copyright notice on the title page of my article should appear as follows:

(year following the conference) (insert author(s) or name of institution, as appropriate)

Your name above will count as your "signature" for copyright.

This publication volume is published on the ABLE web site (www.ableweb.org), as an on-line journal.
